March 15 A. P. GOVER.

Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.

BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE,
Fairfax Court-House, Va

HENDERSON'S ISLAND.

From Thinglave the track led across a plain entirely covered with lava, to the bank of a frightful chasm called Almanagia, where the solid masses of burnt rock have been disrupted, so as to form a fissure or gap not less than 180 feet deep, in many places of the same width, and about three miles in length. The parish of Thingvalla consisted of twelve families; the church which was somewhat larger than that of Moostell, was filled with barrels, books, and chests, which served the purpose of seats, and on a shelf before the altar stood the pastor's coffin, prepared by himself. Miserable as the place now was—'a spot' says Sir Geo. Mackenzie, "of wildness and desolation, on every side of which appear the most tremendous effects of ancient convulsions and disorder, while nature sleeps in a death-like silence amid the horrors she had formed"—it was here that the Christian religion was first established on the Island; it was here too that the seat of the Allthing or general Assembly, was held for the period of nearly 900 years.

On the margin of the lake are several hot-springs, some of which throw the water to the height of three feet and emit a considerable quantity of steam. In the hottest the thermometer of Fahrenheit ascended to 212; the water was sulphurous,& the incrustations formed by the depositions were extremely delicate and beautiful. From thence they proceeded to the Geysers: the heat of the weather was intense, and the musquetoes very troublesome. The following is his description of the New Geyser, called by the natives strokr from strocha—to churn.

"On the morning of the 29th, I was awakened by Capt. Von Scheel, at 23 minutes past 5 o'clock, to contemplate an eruption of the spring, which Sir John Stanley denominates the New Geyser, situated at the distance of a hundred and forty yards to the south of the principal fountain. It is scarcely possible, however to give any idea of the brilliancy and grandeur of the scene which caught my eye on drawing aside the curtain of my tent. From an orifice nine feet in diameter, which lay directly before me, at the distance of about an hundred yards, a column of water accompanied with prodigious volumes of steam, was erupted with inconceivable force, and a tremendous roaring noise to varied heights from fifty to eighty feet, threatened to darken the horizon, though brightly illumined by the morning sun. During the first quarter of an hour, I found it impossible to move from my knees, on which I had raised myself, but poured out my soul in solemn adoration of the Almighty Author of nature, to whose control all her secret movements and terrifying operations are subject:—"who looketh on the earth and it trembleth, who toucheth the hills and they smoke." At length I repaired to the fountain, where we all met, and communicated to each other our mutual and enraptured feelings of wonder and admiration.—The jets of water now subsided; but their place was occupied by the spray and steam which, having free room to play, rushed with a deafening roar to a height little inferior to that of the water. On throwing the largest stones we could find into the pipe, they were instantly propelled to an amazing height and some of them that were cast up more perpendicular than the others, remained for the space of four or five minutes within the influence of the steam, being successively ejected and falling again in a very amusing manner. A gentle northern breeze carried part of the spray at the top of the pillar to the one side, when it fell like a drizzling rain, and was so cold that we could stand below it, and receive it in her hands or face without the least inconvenience. While I kept my station on the same side with the sun, a most brilliant circle bow of a large size, appeared on the opposite side of the fountain: and on changing sides, having the fountain between me and the sun, I discovered another, if possible still more baautiful, but so small as only to encircle my head. Their hues entirely resembled those of the common raindow. After continuing to roar about half an hour longer, the column of spray visibly diminished, and sunk gradually till twenty six minutes past six, when it fell to the same state in which we had observed it the preceding day, the water boiling at the depth of twenty feet below the orifice of the shaft.

The most enrapturing scene, however, that we beheld, was exhibited on the morning of the 30th. About ten minutes past 5 we were roused by the roaring of Strockr, which blew up a great quantity of steam; and when my watch stood at the full quarter, a crash took place as if the earth had burst, which was instantaneously succeeded by jets of water and spray, rising in a perpendicular column to the height of sixty feet. As the sun happened to be behind a cloud, we had no expectation of witnessing any thing more sublime than we had already seen; but Strockr had not been in action above twenty minutes, when the Great Geyser, apparently jealous of her reputation, and indignant at our bestowing so much of our time and applause on her rival, began to thunder tremendously, and emitted such quantities of water and steam, that we could not be satisfied with a distant view, but hastened to the mound with as much curiosity as if it had been the first eruption we had beheld. However, as if she was more interesting in point of magnitude, she gave us less satisfaction in point of duration, having again become tranquil in the course of five minutes; whereas, her less gaudy, but more steady companion, continued to play till within four minutes of six o'clock.

[Quarterly Review, Dec. 1818.

ANTIQUITIES OF EGYPT.

In the year 1763, Mr. Davison, British consul at Algiers, made a visit to Egypt, resided eighteen months at Cairo, and made frequent excursions to the pyramids in the neighborhood. His papers, which have lately been collected and published by Mr. Walpole, contains much curious information respecting those monuments of antiquity. The following extract from the Quarterly Review, for December, 1818, is an account of his descent into a well in the great pyramid:—

"In a short but comprehensive letter addressed to M. Varsy, the author observes that, as he conceived the supposed well to be of vast depth, he provided himself with a vast quantity of rope, which turned out to be no useless precaution—for though he found a sort of steps, or holes in the rock, yet the lower part of them were so worn away, as to risk a fall and consequent destruction by trusting to them alone. To avoid so calamitous an event, Mr. Davison tied a rope round his middle; and previously to his decent, let down a lantern attached to the end of a small cord, which, on finding it soon to stop, he prepared to follow. With much persuasion he prevailed on two of his servants and three Arabs to hold the rope; the Arabs assured him there were ghoals below, that he never could hope to return; Mr. Davison laughed at their timidity; and taking with him a few sheets of paper, a compass, a measure, and another lighted candle, commenced the descent and soon reached the bottom of the first well or shaft. Here he found, on the south side, at a distance of about eight feet from the first shaft, a second opening which descended perpendicularly, to the depth of five feet only; and at four feet ten inches from the bottom of this, a third shaft, the mouth of which was nearly choaked up with large stone, leaving only a small opening, barely sufficient to allow a man to pass. Here he thought it prudent to let down his lantern, not only to discover to what depth he was about to proceed, but also to ascertain if the air was pernicious. The shaft, however, was so tortuous that the candle soon became invisible; but Mr. Davison was not be discouraged—nothing less than a journey to the bottom would satisfy his eager curiosity: the difficulty was, how to prevail on the Arabs to come down and hold the rope. To all his entreaties they only answered, that a few years before, a Frank having got to the place where he then was, let down a rope to discover the depth, when the devil caught hold of it and pulled it out of his hands. 'I was well aware,' says Mr. Davison, 'to whom they were indepted to for this story—the Dutch consul swore that the thing happened to himself.' After many prayers and threats, and promises of money and of all the treasure that might be discovered at the bottom of the well, the avarice of one man got the better, in some degree, of his terrors, and he ventured to descend; on reaching the bottom, says Mr. Davison, he stared about him, pale and trembling, appearing more like a spectre than a human being.

"Our enterprising adventurer now hastened on his journey, with the rope round his body; and the light of the lantern, which he had let down, convinced him that this well was somewhat deeper than the first. Having proceeded a little farther than half way down to the spot where the candle rested, as it afterwards appeared, he came to a grotto about 15 feet long, 4 or 5 wide, and about the height of a man; from this place the third shaft or well was sloping, and by throwing down a stone he ascertained it to be of much greater depth than the others; pushing the lantern a little before him, he set out afresh on his journey; and calling to the Arab to loosen the rope gently, with the help of the little holes made in the rock, he gradually proceeded, without the least appearance of reaching his journey's end. At length the shaft beginning to incline a little more to the perpendicular, brought him speedily to the bottom, where he ascertained it to be completely closed by sand and rubbish.

"Having reached this point, Mr. Davison now began to reflect on two circumstances which had not before occurred to him, and neither of which was very consoling. The first was, that the multitude of bats which he had disturbed might put out his candle; and the second that the immense stone in the mouth of the shaft might slip down and close the passage for ever. On looking about the bottom, he found a rope ladder, which, though it had lain there sixteen years, was as fresh and strong as if perfectly new. It had been said, as it seems, by Mr. Wood (who published an account of the ruins of Balbec and Palmyra) to aid his descent: but he had stopped short at the grotto. When Mr. Davison, on his return, had reached the bottom of the first shaft, the candles fell and went out; 'then,' says he, the poor Arab thought himself lost. He laid hold of the rope as I was about to ascend, declaring that he would rather have his brains blown out than be left there alone with the devil, I therefore permitted him to go before, and though it was much more difficult to ascend than to descend, I know not how it was, but he scrambled up a hundred times more quickly than he had come down'

"The depth of the first shaft was 22 feet of the second 29; and of the third 99; if the five feet between the first and second shaft be added, the whole depth will be found to be 155 feet."

Dorchester, May 4.

Messrs. Editors,

In your paper of April 27th, I observed an extract from the London Courier of March 12th, respecting a settlement of "Welsh Indians" in this country, and which seems to be much doubted in England. The following article may throw some additional light on the subject. I have copied it from a pamphlet in my possession, entitled Bickerstaff's Boston Almanack, for 1787."

A SUBSCRIBER—S. S. R.

"A true and faithful narrative of the captivity and travels of Captain Isaac Stewart, taken by the Indians near Fort Pitt, in 1764."

"I was taken prisoner near Fort Pitt by the Indians, and carried, with many more white men to Wabash, who were executed with horrid barbarity. It was my good fortune to excite the sympathy of what is called the good woman of the town, who was permitted to redeem me from the flames by giving them a horse. After remaining two years in bondage among the Indians, a Spaniard came to the nation, having been sent from Mexico on discoveries. He made application to the chiefs for redeeming me, and one John Davey, a Welchman. They complied, and we took our departure in company with the Spaniard, and travelled to the westward, crossing the river Mississippi, near the river Rogue, or Red river, up which we travelled seven hundred miles, when we came to a nation of Indians remarkably white, and whose hair was of a reddish color—at least, mostly so. They lived on the banks of a small river that empties itself into the Red river, which is called the River Post. In the morning of the day after our arrival among these Indians, the Welchman said he would tarry, as the language was like the Welch. My curiosity was excited by this information, and I went with my companion to the chief men of the town, who informed him (in a language I had no knowledge of, and not like any other Indian tongue I ever heard,) that the forefathers of this nation came from a foreign country, landed on the east side of the Mississippi, describing particularly the country now called West Florida, and that on the Spaniards taking possession of Mexico, they fled to their then abode. To prove what they asserted, they produced rolls of parchment, carefully tied up in otter skins, on which were large characters written in blue ink, which I did not understand, and the Welchman being unacquainted with letters, even of his own language, I could not know the writing.

They were a bold, hardy people, very warlike, and the women beautiful when compared with other Indians. We left this nation, after being kindly treated and requested to remain among them, &c."

BEAUTY.

In England, France, and Italy,

By M. Stedhal.

Ancona, May 27.

I met, at St. Cirac, a Russian general, a friend of Erfurth, who had just come from Paris.

A physical peculiarity of the French shocked my Russian friend very much—the dreadful leanness of the most of the danseuses at the Opera. In fact, it seems to me, on reflection, that many of our fashionable women who are extremely slender, have caused this circumstance to enter into the idea of beauty. Leanness is in France considered necessary to an elegant air. In Italy, people think very rationally, that the first condition of it is the air of health, without which there is no voluptuousness.

The Russian is of opinion that beauty is very rare among the French ladies. He maintains that the finest figures he saw at Paris, were English women.

If we take the trouble to count in the Bois de Bulogne, out of 100 French women, eighty are agreeable, and hardly one beautiful. Out of one hundred English women, thirty are grotesque, forty are decidedly ugly, twenty tolerably well, though nausades, and ten divinities on this earth, from the freshness and innocence of their beauty.

Out of one hundred Italian women, thirty are carricatures, with face and neck besmeared with rogue and powder, fifty are beautiful, but with no other attraction than an air of voluptuousness—the twenty others are of antigue beauty, the most overpowering, and, in our opinion, surpass even the most beautiful English women. English beauty seems avaricious, without soil and life, beside the divine eyes which Heaven has given to Italy.

The form of the bones in the hand is ugly at Paris; it approximates to that of the monkey, and it prevents he women from resisting the attacks of age. The three most beautiful women of Rome are certainly more than 45. Paris is farther north—and yet such a miracle was never yet observed there. I observed to the Russian general, that Paris and Champagne were the parts of France where the configuration of the head partakes least of beauty. The women of Pays de Vaux, (in Normandy) and of Arles (in Province) approximate more to the beautiful forms of Italy. Here and there is always some grand feature, even in the heads of the most decidedly ugly. Some idea may be formed of this, from the heads of old women of Leonardo da Vinci, and of Raphael

As to male beauty, after the Italians, we give the preference to young Englishmen, when they escape clumsiness.

A young Italian peasant that happens to be ugly, is frightful; the French peasant is silly; and the English is vulgar.

From the Salem (Mass.) Gazette.

A GIANT.

William Dowst, who lately died in this town, was a man of uncommon size and stength. The following instance will prove a great degree of strength. He was on board a privateer last war, which got among the breakers off cape Breton, when it became necessary to cast anchor, but there being none upon deck, as many hands laid hold of one which was in the hold as could get at it, but could not start it. Dowst pushed them aside, seized it himself, brought it upon deck, carried it forward, and held it upon the timber heads while a cable was bent to it, when he threw it over, and saved the vessel and lives of the crew, as they were then on the point of dashing on the rocks. The anchor weighed seven hundred weight. At another time, 8 or 10 hands were sent to Beckets ship yard from the well known privateer Grand Turk, to bring up a fore yard for the ship. Dowst was among them, but, naturally dilatory, he did not at first take hold, the others shouldered it, but began to stagger under it, and complained that they were not strong enough to carry it. Dowst lauging at them, told them he could carry it alone—on which they threw it down, and he took it up and carried it to the ship without assistance. At another time, while attending the fish flakes at Windmill point, he was directed by his employer to go for a jackass which was in an adjoining field; when Dowst got him to the partition fence, being in rather a lazy mood, to save himself the trouble of letting down the bars, he took the beast and lifted him over, and then got on his back and rode him to the place where he was employed. He once raised from the ground the anchor of the prize ship Rockhampton, which weighed 1700 pounds, and which four men immediately before had endeavoured in vain to lift, upon a bet. Being at Bilboa, last war, in a privateer, an English vessel came in, which had in its crew a professed bully, who was challenging every one to combat, and, hearing of Dowst, sent a particular challenge to him—they met, and the Englishman, who was superior to our Sampson in the art of boxing, knocked him down three times, and the last time twisted his fingers into his hair, to gouge him, when Dowst gave him a blow upon his arm which broke it, and with another blow broke three of the bulley's ribs, who, it is said, died of his wounds. Dowst, with his amazing strength, was remarkably good natured and tender in his feelings, and rather of an indolent habit; but when he was roused to anger, or exertions, his efforts were irresistable. He enjoyed through life a large share of health. For three months previous to his death, he had been afflicted with the dropsey, but appeared to have been recovered; and the last day of his life he walked abroad the greater part of the day, according to his usual custom—but the next morning his wife found him dead in his bed.

ALEXANDRIA:
FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1819.

A correspondent of the Albany Register gives the following as the state of parties in the next House of Assembly of the state of New-York. Whole number of members 126; which he classes as follows: republican 46, federal 39, tammany 41—of which he says there are 75 in favor of Mr. Clinton's administration.

Cadiz, (Ohio,) April 24.

We are happy to state that the nest of counterfeiters, through this country and Guernsey, have in a great measure broke up. Last week and the week before, there were four committed to prison in this place to await their trial, at July term of the court. There was found hid under a slab within a few rods of the house of Gallaspey, one of the men committed to prison, a roll of counterfeit notes, amounting to 3000 dollars.

A book was found under the same slab that concealed the counterfeit notes containing upwards of 300 dols. in notes altered from one's to ten's, and twenty's.

It was discovered that there was a link of the chain in Londonderry, Guernsey county. Several citizens of this place went on immediately to Londonderry, and on making a search, they found in the possession of John M Henderson, a press, ink and paper, for the purpose of printing counterfeit bills. There was also found in the possession of said Henderson, vials, containing materials for extracting ink and altering notes with a letter giving directions how to use them. Henderson was conveyed to Cambridge and lodged in prison.

Charleston, May 14.

Yesterday was committed to the Gaol in this City, a man by the name of Darby, charged with having, some time in February last, in Christ Church Parish, murdered his own wife. Justice though slow is sure—for, as in this instance, it would appear that this man, from the length of time since he is said to have committed this horrible deed, and the precautions made use of to deceive mankind, felt himself perfectly safe from the just vengeance of all human tribunals—and perhaps had altogether forgot these emphatical words of the Holy Scriptures, made use of in the first Book of the Old Testament "Whoso sheddeth Man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed, for in the image of God made he Man."

FROM THE UNION.

Philadelphia, May 12, 1819.

Mr. Editor,

By inserting the following letter in your valuable paper, you will do an act of kindness to the friends of some part of my late crew, who still remain in Arabian slavery, and who, it appears, may yet be restored to their liberty, their country, and the bosom of their family.

With regard, I am sir, yours, respectfully, JAMES RILEY.

Tongier, 8th February, 1819.

My Dear Sir,

I hasten to transmit the following paragraph of a letter from Mr. Willshire, dated the 15th last month, just received by express:

"On the 25th inst. I received by express a letter from ———, acquainting me, that at the market of Milood, held last month, in the vicinity of Widnoon, that he had offered the sum of one hundred and sixty dollars for an American seaman, who had been brought to the market by some Arabs from the eastward of the desert, but that being out-bid they refused to dispose of him; the owners of two others immediately set off, promising to return in 40 or 50 days with them."

I most sincerely congratulate you, my dear sir, on this happy intelligence, as every concurrent circumstance points the people to be those we have all so anxiously sought after. I can but add the assurance of being,

My dear sir, your most obd't serv't.

JAMES SIMPSON.

COMMERCIAL.

Capt. Perry, of the brig John Bergwin, from Havre, has favored us with the proceedings of the masters of American vessels, in that port, held on the 9th March last, to take into consideration the subject of a letter addressed by his excellency the minister of the interior to the chamber of commerce of Havre. The purport of this letter was to direct, that in future the business of entering and clearing at the custom house all foreign vessels arriving in that port, must be confined to the ship brokers, and that if foreign consuls should consider themselves injured by this regulation, it must become the subject of diplomatic arrangement. The meeting of the masters of vessels resulted in the adoption of a letter to Mr. Beasley, American consul, remonstrating, in strong and dignified terms, against the unjust regulation. We shall give the proceedings, together with the letter, in our next. [Philad. Gaz.

"We, the subscribers, being fully sensible of the importance of military discipline, and preferring a select association to the mixt enrolment in the common battalion companies, do hereby agree to form ourselves into a UNIFORM COMPANY, to be denominated ————. The uniform to be that which the law prescribes, and the officers to be elected by the company."

The advantages resulting to the members of such an association are obvious.—The uniform will not be an expense, as in other companies, it being that which the militia law requires every individual to appear in, which requisition will be rigidly enforced hereafter by courts martial. The number will be limited to 64, and those desirous of becoming members should enrol themselves immediately. 6t May 18

100 Dollars Reward.

IS known to have been kidnapped from a field near Germantown, between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock, on the 30th ult. whilst at work alone, a Free Black Man, named HENRY HUDSON, aged between 21 and 22 years, of the height of five feet five inches, very black complexion and dark eyes, has a scar under his left arm, between the wrist and elbow, occasioned by the cut of an axe.

He is by occupation a farmer, a native of Kent county, in the state of Delaware, had on a blue cloth roundabout jacket, old black silk vest, corded velvet pantaloons, and a wool hat.

He is a very civil, inoffensive man, with rather a down look. There is reason to suppose that he was decoyed into a carriage, and conveyed southward.

Any information respecting him will be thankfully received. Keepers of turnpike gates, toll bridges, and taverns, are particularly requested to give such information as may be in their power.

The above reward will be cheerfully paid on conviction of the perpetrators of this flagrant outrage upon the rights of a freeborn citizen of the United States.

Public Sale.

ON the 9th DAY of JULY next, at 12 o'clock of that day, by virtue of a deed of trust, we will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, on the premises, that very valuable tract of land in Fairfax county, near Holmes's Run, and about four miles from Alexandria, generally known by the name of containing about 115 acres. This land is about one half in wood—the balance cleared, and in cultivation, with convenient buildings on it, and excellent water near them. A considerable proportion of the open land is fertile, and well calculated for timothy meadows.

The sum of $2,254 77 cts will be required to be paid in cash; for the residue a credit of twelve months will be given from the day of sale, the purchaser paying interest thereon, and giving satisfactory security for the punctual payment thereof. A conveyance will be made when the purchase money and interest is all paid up. If the terms of the sale should not be complied with by the purchaser, the premises will be immediately re-sold to the highest bidder, at the risque of the person to whom it shall have been struck off; and the same course will be repeated until an effectual sale shall have taken place.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or Curvature of the Spine.

DR. HAMILTON,

No. 47, North Gay street, Baltimore,

HAVING turned much of his attention during a long practice to the diseases of the Spine, begs leave to tender his services for the cure or relief of that afflicting malady. The approach of this disease is easily detected by an attentive observer. It makes its appearance generally in children between the second and sixth year; a protuberance of one or more of the small bones composing the spine becomes evident, loss of appetite, irregularity of the bowels, and emaciation soon follow, together with much disinclination to walk—and unless immediate aid is obtained, death or incurable decripitude through life are the certain consequences.

Doctor Hamilton has the satisfaction of knowing that his treatment of this disease, and application of the necessary apparatus, which is simplified at the same time, that it is materially improved, have received the unqualified approbation of many of the most eminent of his medical brethren in Baltimore. Spring corsets, upon a new principle, can be applied for the use of young ladies evincing a tendency to this disease, which, while they afford the most effectual support for either side, may be worn without observation. Satisfactory references might be given to parents whose children have profited by this improved mode of treatment, did not delicacy forbid the publication: they may be easily obtained if desired, by a private interview.

Blacking for Boots & Shoes,

Superior to any ever offered to the public.

ROBERT COCHRAN,

No. 48, North Fourth-street, next door to the Green Tree Inn, Philadelphia.

WITH confidence offers to the public, his superior Portable and Liquid blacking, so much admired and approved of, which is manufactured by himself only.

This blacking possesses every desirable quality, being of an oily nature, it preserves the leather perfectly soft to the last, and keeps it from cracking—it is a jet black, affords a most superlative polish, entirely free from any offensive smell, and so clean as not to soil the whitest muslin or any other substance it may chance to run against, and will keep in any climate—it has a peculiar advantage in being put up in a portable manner, and may be packed without possibility of risque, with the nicest clothes or goods. The Portable Blacking is much adapted for gentlemen residing or travelling in the country, where materials for making Blacking is not to had, and as for cheapness and elegance, far exceeds any ever imported or manufactured in the union. Where is sold as above, the beautiful Chinese Liquid Blacking, for ladies morocco boots and shoes, which makes the oldest morocco boots or shoes appear the same as when new. Sold wholesale at the manufactory, as above.

N. B. Please observe that each bottle it sealed and signed by the proprietor, to prevent spurious impressions being imposed on the public.

It may be had at the following places in Alexandria.—Dr. Stabler and Richard Woods on Fairfax street,—Dr. Semmes, & Dr. Little's apothecary shops, on King-street.—Isaac Entwisles, shoe factory, and Thomas Mount's factory & Hardware store on King-street. sw2m March 20

Charlotte Hall School.

THE board of trustees for Charlotte Hall school deem it their duty to announce to the public, the present flourishing condition of this institution. Since the introduction of the present professors, the school has rapidly progressed in the public estimation.

When Philip Briscoe, esq. was called to assume the office of Principal, there were but 27 pupils. The liberality of the State Legislature of 1817, enabled the trustees to retain his services and those of Mr. Miltimore for the classical department—the Reverend Mr. Neale H. Shaw has also been retained as professor of mathematicks, and he is aided in that department by Mr. Sweetsee, a gentleman in high estimation as a professor. Under the management of these gentlemen the school has now 95 boys; and very many applications have already been made for entrance and board. Heretofore a portion of the boys have been compelled to board at the neighboring houses at too great a distance from the school; the trustees are now making arrangements which will enable fifty boys more to be accommodated immediately at the school; so that at all times the Principal will be enabled to exercise a general superintendance over their moral deportment (to the corruption of which, the boys in this retired village have but few temptations). The board will remark to those who are unacquainted with this place, that no part of Maryland is more distinguished for its general healthiness. The price of board is only 100 dollars a year. The tuition is now but 28 dollars a year! It will be raised after August to 32 dollars—a price much lower, however, than any of the public schools of our state.

It is intended then by the trustees to select four boys (of poor and indigent parents) of promise, and to board, clothe, and educate them entirely at the expense of the institution, and afterwards to labor to procure them that station to which their talents and conduct may entitle them.

Signed, by order,

NEALE H. SHAW, Reg'r.
